Raising Readers

Help families explore how learning to read begins at home and the important role they play in inspiring their children to love reading.

Increase parent involvement at your school by hosting the Raising Readers program. Research has shown the positive power parent involvement has on student academic achievement, and this no-cost program helps adult family members develop a special bond with their children as they read to and with them at home.

Share fun, interactive activities and strategies on how families can select right-fit books for their children.
